THE SECOND EDITION OF

A ROYAL GENEALOGICAL AND HISTORICAL

CHART OF WELSH HISTORY,

FROM THE EARLIEST TIMES TO OWEN CLYNDWR
AND KING HENRY VII.,

WITH MORE THAN FOUR HUNDRED AND FIFTY REFERENCES TO EXISTING FAMILIES.

BY J. J. HARRIES HARRIS,

Of St. John's College Cambridge, and the College of Preceptors, London;
Head Master of the Grammar School, St. Asaph; Author of 'Birmingham Ecclesiastical & Scholastic,' the 'Schoolroom,' and other Works.

GENEALOGY COLLECTION

In this Chart (which has been prepared from authentic sources, and in many instances collated with manuscript and other authorities kindly offered by the Nobility and Gentry, and which embraces upwards of twelve hundred individuals,) the Descents, Alliances, and Issue of the Royal Dynasties of Wales are clearly and accurately shewn, and the principal historical events and dates connected with the life of each person are recorded. The connexion of the different noble Tribes and Families with the Royal Lines is exhibited, and the present representatives of the ancient pedigrees are named, whilst, by a novel and interesting arrangement, the rank of every individual is known at a glance, and the usually heavy and monotonous appearance of a Genealogical Table is avoided.

On the whole, it is hoped that this work (the result of the labour of many months), will be accepted as a useful and correct record of some of the ancient glories of the Principality; at the same time that from the high style of its execution and finish, it will become an ornamental appendage to the Hall, Library, and Parlour of the Nobility, Gentry, Clergy, and Inhabitants of Wales and the neighbouring English Counties.

Gentlemen are requested to send their names to MR. HARRIS, as it is not intended in the first instance to issue the work through the Booksellers, unless specially appointed as Agents.

Introductory Remarks.

The earliest inhabitants of Britain were a Tribe of Germany from the Eastern Extremity of Europe who called the country "Y Fel" "The Land of Green Hills." The Legions, Northern and Western parts of the country "The Rocky Island" and then to "Prochain" their descent and separate branches, in "Celtic" and "Wales" (Green).

The Romans conquered great part of Britain but did not interrupt the Saxons the Legions Britons to take refuge in the "Carnarvon" Provinces at Rome at the time the death of Edward IV. 1462 and severe Laws were enacted by the English under Henry VII and in 1534 Henry VIII, with England in the enjoyment of equal rights in Wales which constituted their Province of Britannia were first called that Country Wales the family of some time as St Paul perfectly introduced Christianity upon after Queen Elizabeth's Reformation, temporary Henry VII. Remarks, but these were gradually repeated, especially passed the Great Statute whereby Wales was incorporated rights, privileges and laws.

The earliest Genealogical, and in fact Historical Events connected with the British a descendant of Eneas who B.C. is said to have landed on the Sovereignty which at his death he left amongst his three Sons, much, to the first of whom he gave England thence called Legria, Wales he called Cambria, and to the third Scotland in like manner des. Brutus to King Arthur are preserved the names of 86 British Princes. These are omitted here and the Genealogies are made to commence about 2 years before Caesar's invasion because most of the Welsh History can be traced from him. By this arrangement the mutual of individuals is shown in a manner which has not, it is believed been previous but some errors or quasi errors from which a work of this magnitude and scope is to be exempt will be pointed out to the Author, who gladly avails to convey the expression of his thanks to those Noblemen and Gentlemen and at his disposal a great part of the documents, where he has been in relation embodied in this apportionment towards the History of the Principality
